

Abdulaziz Alquniah

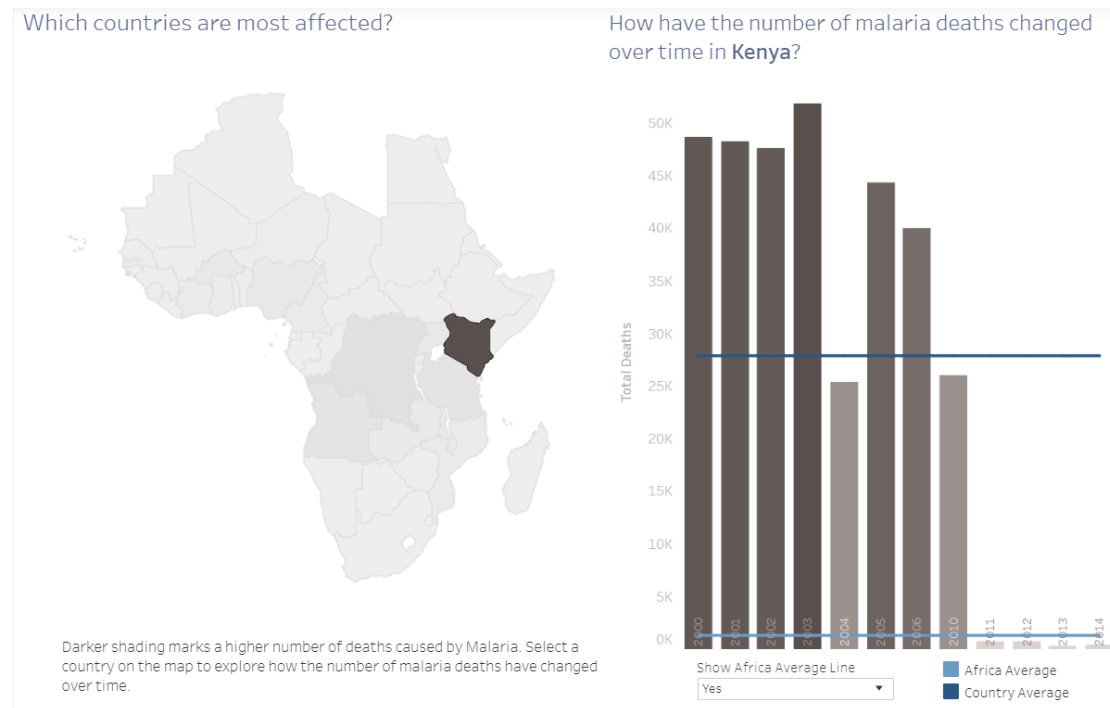

During 2011-2012, deaths per year in Sudan were the lowest, there were about 600 deaths only. In the period from 2006 - 2011 there were more than 1000 deaths per year; while before 2006 there were more than 1700 deaths per year. More efforts should be made because the deaths per year in 2013 and 2014 are increasing.

In Congo, the deaths per year are large and increasing, the lowest number was in 2001, it was less than Africa average (1303). After 2003 the numbers are highly increasing to be more than 30K in 2013; that decreased in 2014 with 1/6 percent to be about 25K. Congo needs urgent help.

Kenya which appears to be one of the most affected countries looks doing a great job in malaria fighting. Opposite of Congo, Kenya could of decreasing the deaths per year, from about 49K in 2000 to about 500 in 2014; this is really a great accomplishment.